Sadat sets deadline

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Beirut newspaper today quoted President Anwar Sadat of Egypt as setting a three-month deadline for withdrawal by Israel from some of the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian territory it occupies.

The paper, An Nahar, said Sadat told its interviewer that if the deadline is not met he will abandon Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempts to advance Israel and the Arabs toward a settlement.

Sadat also was quoted as saying he would go to war at once if Israel attacks Syria, Egypt's principal ally in the 1973 war, and that "Egypt will not be the sphere of influence for anyone. No to the Soviets and no to the Americans.'

There was no official reaction from Israel but officials in Jerusalem said they considered Sadat's remarks serious. Wellinformed Israelis said on the surface the deadline appeared unacceptable. But they pointed out that since the interview was to Beirut newspaper, Sadat's statement could be meant for "internal consumption in the Arab world."

They also said Sadat could be expected to take a hard line at this juncture because Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon is in Washington conferring with Kissinger and other U.S. officials. Colby testifies at

Senate committee

WASHINGTON (AP) - CIA Director William E. Colby met in closed session with the Senate Armed Services Committee today to answer questions about his admission that the CIA spied on antiwar groups and other dissidents in the United States.

Colby had no comment as he arrived on Capitol Hill for his second appearance before the committee in as many days. Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., who is briefed on most CIA operations, said he had been unaware of most of the domestic activity described by Colby on Wednesday.

Former CIA Director Richard Helms, now U.S. ambassador to Iran, also appeared before the committee, sitting next to Colby. Helms headed the agency from 1966 to 1973, during which many of the domestic activities acknowledged by Colby occuurred.

Meanwhile, Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., said in a speech prepared for delivery on the House floor today that Helms should not be permitted to return to his diplomatic post until he is completely cleared of wrongdoing.

Findley, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the charges against Helms have "greatly compromised his effectiveness" as ambassador.

Colby denied Wednesday published reports that the CIA "conducted a massive illegal domestic intelligence operation." He is scheduled to testify today before the Armed Services panel.

However, in a lengthy statement, he outlined agency spy operations directed against antiwar, radicals and other dissidents in the United States. Colby also acknowledged that the CIA had established files on some 10,000 American Colby's statement, released after a closed-door appearance before senior members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, also revealed the existence of other CIA domestic activities involving wiretapping, surveillance and opening the mail of American citizens.

Chairman John L. McClellan called the domestic activities "more or less incidental" but said an in-depth investigation was needed.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., introduced legislation to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the intelligence community and "to bring those who violated the law to justice.'

In his 45-page statement, Colby described two CIA programs in which agents infiltrated American dissident

Nation pays honor to memory of King

By SAMUEL MAULL Associated Press Writer

From the East Coast to Hawaii and through the Deep South where Martin Luther King Jr. was born and died, thousands of Americans observed the civil rights leader's 46th birthday anniversary and legacy of fellowship with parades, memorial services, ceremonies and song.

In Montgomery, Ala., where King came to national prominence in 1955 while leading a boycott of the segregated public bus system, about 3,000 persons gathered at the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church to hear city officials proclaim Montgomery's first Martin Luther King Day.

In Atlanta, the Nobel Peace Prize laureate's widow, Coretta Scott King, broke ground for the $10 million Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change. She said the facility would be not only a memorial but a teaching center for nonviolent social action. Mrs. King said the center already has begun grappling

King's birthplace, a two-story frame house two blocks from the Ebenezer Baptist Church, was dedicated and opened to the public. Martin Luther King Sr. is the pastor of the church.

At the church's ecumenical service which began the day-long celebration, Dexter King, 13, told the overflowing crowd his father practiced nonviolent social protest in public and at home.

"He once took a toy gun from me and burned it and then explained the significance of it," Dexter said.

But while King's contributions to social equality were being remembered, there was sharp focus by some on the problems which remain, on crime and the economy which weigh heavily on poor black communities.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's total output of goods and services for the closing three months of last year took the second sharpest plunge since World War II, the government reported Thurs-The Commerce Department said the fourth-quarter drop of 9.1 per cent in output came after adjustment for inflation. The same adjustment for inflation left the year's output 2.2 per cent below 1973.

The figures, the broadest measure of the economy's performance, confirmed earlier statistics which had indicated that the recession deepened from October through December.

Ford policy criticized by Simon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Treasury Secretary William E. Simon today said President Ford's new economic program would not contribute greatly to the nation's high inflation rate and he urged Congress to enact the entire program in a single package.

"This is not a fruitbasket; it's a cocktail. It should be taken in its entirety," Simon said at a news conference.

Simon said he remains President Ford's chief economic spokesman and has no intention of resigning, despite published reports that he's on his way out as Treasury secretary because of disagreements over the Ford program.

"If I'm on my way out, I've not been told that yet, nor have I submitted my resignation," Simon said. He said he was "fully behind our President ... and his proposals and I believe the American people will be behind him as well." Ford has projected a budget deficit for 1976 of at least $45 billion, and Simon said that deficit "horrifies me." But Simon said he felt it was necessary in the current recession to stop the nation's economic slide and he also said the administration remained conscious of the need to fight inflation.

He said the President's proposed energy taxes which would cost the economy an estimated $30 billion would add about two per cent to the nation's inflation rate, but he added, "the cost of inaction would be much higher."

Congress expected to take quick action

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic congressional leaders told President Ford today they expect action within 90 days on key segments of his economic program, but voiced misgivings about his proposals for energy taxes and across-the-board tax

Senate Democratic whip Robert Byrd told reporters after Ford's White House breakfast with bipartisan congressional leaders that he thinks Congress may very well vote gasoline rationing instead of the conservation plan sought by the Republican President.

Ford formally presented his proposals to the Congress Wednesday and House Democrats said afterwards they hoped to pass a tax cut within two months.

Byrd said Democratic leaders pledged at today's breakfast to move quickly but told Ford "as a matter of course there would be some changes" in his proposals.

Specifically, Byrd said concern was expressed about granting a tax rebate across the board rather than concentrating in lower and middle-income

He also said there is a growing consensus among Democrats that Ford's proposed $2-abarrel tax on domestic and foreign crude oil would "lend additional fuel to the fires of inflation.

"I indicated my viewpoint that we ought to move to gasoline rationing," Byrd said. When asked whether Congress would pass a gasoline rationing plan, he responded, "I think it may very well do that."

Later, however, in response to questions, he declined to flatly predict passage of a mandatory rationing plan.

Ford asked for standby rationing

Several Democrats said the measures outlined by Ford in a somber State of the Union speech Wednesday will fail to revitalize the slumping economy and will increase inflationary pressures by driving up the price of fuel.

For the most part, Republican lawmakers said Ford had faced up to the nation's problems and that it is now up to the heavily Democratic Congress to act. The views of House leaders were considered particularly significant because the Constitution requires all revenue legislation to originate there.

Most of Ford's proposals had been disclosed earlier in his nationally televised and broadcast speech Monday night and in briefings by White House offi-

His proposals included: -A two-stage tax reduction, including a 12 per cent rebate on 1974 taxes up to $1,000 plus a permanent lowering of tax rates, mostly for lower income families, starting this

-A package of energy taxes expected to raise fuel prices by 10 cents a gallon, and increased levies on windfall oil company

-Refusal to propose any new domestic spending programs other than those devoted to energy research, and a vow to veto spending programs passed by

Labor and business react to Ford plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Labor, several foreign countries and some business groups are critical of economic proposals advanced by President Ford in his State of the Union address

In the flood of reaction to Ford's message Wednesday, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce was almost alone in promising to do what it could to help the President achieve his objectives.

The President's tax proposals drew a welcome from some economists and businessmen

Former President Richard M. Nixon's chief economic adviser, Paul W. McCracken, said, "I'm all for the tax cut."

Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago said he was delighted with the tax cut since "the real need is to cut government spending."

AFL-CIO President George Meany called the President's objectives "clearly unsupportable" and vowed to fight them in Congress.

'The President's proposals - linked as they are to staggering energy cost increases - are merely an incomplete effort to rebate those costs to taxpayers," Meany said. "They are not in any sense a stimulus to an economy that is sick and needs an immediate boost in consumer purchasing power.'

President Arch Booth of the Chamber of Commerce called Ford's address "grim but stimulating." Booth praised the President for leveling with the American

"Business, like everyone else, was confronted in the message with tough realities," Booth said. "President Ford deserves the prompt bipartisan cooperation he requested from the new Congress and the American people."

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor, Co., complimented the soundness of the President's proposals. He told the President in a telegram: "I hope Congress will move quickly to weigh your suggestions and enact legislation that can turn this economy around ... '

But the National Association of Manufacturers said it had "serious reservations" about larger federal deficits that would result from the proposals.

Petroleum program greeted with praise

HOUSTON (AP) — A leading petroleum economist describes President Ford's national energy program as sound and ambitious but says it would reduce the industry's earnings after taxes by about $2

Ted Eck, chief economist for Standard Oil-Indiana in Chicago, said: "It is not consistent with our objective of increasing the level of exploration and investment such as synthetic fuel plants and refineries.

'But the basic program is good. .. It does look like it hangs together and would achieve substantial reductions in import dependency in the next two or three years and certainly by 1985."

Spokesmen for conservationist and consumer interests generally opposed Ford's proposals to defer auto pollution standards for five years and raise prices for oil and gas.

A Mobil Oil spokesman in New York said Ford's program "seems extremely

"But we wonder if the private sector also will be enabled to achieve a structure that will provide the incentive in terms of return on investment to attract the capital needed to do the job," he said. Other major companies such as Exxon, Standard-California, Gulf, Texaco, Standard-Ohio, and Atlantic Richfield said the Ford recommendations are under

Sherman Hunt, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, said he welcomed Ford's recommendation for the decontrol of old oil and new natural

"However, if price decontrol is canceled out by taxation, then his talk of scores of new refineries and thousands of new oil and gas wells become an empty dream," said Hunt, a Dallas independent.

George Mitchell, president of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, said there should be greater emphasis on the search for new domestic oil and gas reserves.

Two chairmen ousted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two powerful House committee chairmen-F. Edward Hebert of Armed Services and W.R. Poage of Agriculture-were ousted today by the Democratic caucus.

Democrats emerging from the caucus on voting for the 21 House chairmen said Hebert was rejected 152 to 135 and Poague lost 143 to 141. They thus became the third and fourth the venerable seniority system in the The Democratic Steering Committee earlier had recommended stripping chairmanships from Rep. Wright Pat-chairmen to suffer in a growing assault on man, D-Tex., and Wayne Hays, D-Ohio. The caucus has yet to vote on these recommendations. Poage had been recommended for reappointment as the chairman by the Steering Committee. Under caucus rules the committee now has five days in which to nominate another candidate for the Agriculture chairmanship. Others can be nominated in opposition.

The steering committee voted Wednesday to replace Patman, an 81-yearold Texas Democrat, as chairman of the House Banking Committee with Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis. The panel also nominated Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., to replace Hays, an Ohio Democrat, as chairman of the House Administration Committee. By only two votes, the leadership-dominated steering panel renominated Rep. W.R. Poague, D-Tex., as chairman of the Agriculture Committee and Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., as chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Some members predicted that Poague and Hebert would lose when the more liberal caucus of all House Democrats took up their renominations.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., said Patman's defeat would hurt Hebert's

"It would be an absolute travesty if Patman were ditched and Hebert were not." asserted Eckhardt, saving he was referring to the manner in which the two treated their committee chairmen

"Hebert treats some of his like dirt," Eckhardt said, specifically mentioning an instance where Hebert publicly made sexually oriented remarks to committee member Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.

"The walls are tumbling," said Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., a leader of the move by freshmen members to challenge the seniority system and make chairmen who were accountable to the full Democratic membership.

A veteran member of the steering panel predicted a "ripple effect." "If you shoot down barons, you might as well shoot them all down," he said.

Commenting on the steering committee's votes against Patman and Hays, Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, a member of the panel, said: "What happened is a perfectly understandable result of the election results last November and of the Democratic reforms last month."

Man charged with murder of wife

Gary M. Miller, 27, was bound over Wednesday for trial in Johnson County District Court on a charge that he murdered his wife, whose body was found in the Millers' burning home last October.

He is charged with first-degree murder. An arson charge was dismissed as a two-day preliminary hearing in magistrate court ended Wednesday. Magistrate Keith Stanley ordered the trial after ruling testimony given Tuesday by Dr. James Bridgens, deputy county corner, was admissible.

Dr. Bridgens testified he found no traces of smoke or soot in Mrs. Miller's lungs, that she had been killed by strangulation.

Miller's attorney had challenged the legal authority of Dr. J. Michael Boles, district coroner, to call for the autopsy performed by Bridgens. Stanley ruled that Boles properly was authorized.

Agricultural hall in money trouble

KANSAS CITY (AP) - The Agricultural Hall of Fame at Bonner Springs, Kan., is in financial trouble its president said Wednesday.

Robert C. Miller, Cincinnati, president, told the agribusiness task force of the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce that the center has suffered from a lack of local leadership.

Frank Corbett, a Kansas City, Kan., banker and treasurer of the center, said the facility needs about $50,000 a year to operate but takes in only an estimated $30,000 from gate receipts.

At present, Corbett said, the facility located on a 275acre site bordering the Kansas Turnpike is worth about $1.2 million and it has a debt of $300,000. Some $60,000 to $70,000 in bond principal and interest payments are

Ford's slowdown termed reasonable

WASHINGTON (AP) - Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train said Wednesday he considers the antipollution slowdowns proposed by President Ford as a reasonable compromise.

Train told reporters that the changes proposed by Ford in present clean air requirements would allow the nation to burn more coal and build more efficient automobiles, without seriously harming air quality or causing public health problems. In his State of the Union message, the President proposed two major amendments to the clean air laws: -Postponing for five years the strict auto emission standards now due to take effect in 1977, while moving about halfway toward them in the meantime.

-Permitting a limited number of power plants to burn coal without using permanent antipollution controls until 1985. Most plants would still be required to use permanent controls before

Soap pad cleans plastic off iron

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is with those politicians who do not have their signs removed when the election is over. The posters seem to be on almost every tree and pole. Of all people they should be the first to be interested in keeping our roadsides looking neat.

One of the handiest gadgets I have around my sewing machine is a long corsage pin that I use to help guide small pieces of material under the needle. This is especially handy when making something small like doll clothes or sewing together quilt pieces or anything with a very narrow seam. -

DEAR POLLY — We live in a two-story house. It seemed I was always having to make an extra trip downstairs to get a spoon to give medicine to one of the children who happened to be sick. I saved plastic spoons from drive-in restaurants, wash them with hot, sudsy water and put them in a plastic bag that is kept in the medicine chest. I am saved many steps and my good flatware is always where it should be. The children are less reluctant to take medicine from a colored spoon. - DIANE.

DEAR POLLY - I have a tendency to scuff the toes of my shoes and my navy blue ones can be repaired with blue polish. I could not find the bright polish needed for my red shoes so dabbed some red food coloring on a cotton swab and solved the problem. — MRS. J.D.D.

Rehabilitating offenders appeals to lawyer

By SUSAN SANFORD Advertiser-Journal Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - When Emily Gassenheimer started law school in 1958, she knew exactly where she was going.

She also knew it was going to take her somewhat longer than the average student to get through her courses. Pregnant with her third child, and with a husband and two small daughters requiring much of her time, Mrs. Gassenheimer had to attend classes when she could fit them into her lifestyle. Now, 16 years later, she has reached her goal.

In 1974, Mrs. Gassenheimer graduated from Jones Law School and took the State Bar Exam - an experience she describes as "the most humiliating, demoralizing thing I've ever been through. All those bright-eyed young people, fresh out of law school, and there I was com-

"When it was over, my husband Irvin and my daughters and I had a party to celebrate. They were behind me all the way, and we were all glad it was over." she

In her office on Scott Street, Mrs. Gassenheimer is immersed in the work she was aiming toward all along. "We have also made studies of what cities in other parts of the country are doing in these areas, what programs have been implemented elsewhere.

The 30-member Criminal Justice Committee, according to Mrs. Gassenheimer, is now concerning itself chiefly with three issues: juvenile offenders, bail bond reform and adult offenders. One proposal from Ford won't get a hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford's proposed 5 per cent ceiling on costof-living increases for Social Security recipients won't even get a hearing, says Chairman James M. Burke, D-Mass., of the Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security.

The President proposed the ceiling Wednesday in his State of the Union address. He said it would save $2.5 billion in the Social Security program and another $110 million in the welfare-related Supplemental Security Income program in fiscal 1976.

But Burke's refusal to plan hearings indicates Ford's proposal has little chance

Under legislation passed last year, Social Security recipients receive their first automatic cost of living increase this July, based on the rise in the Consumer Price Index between April 1974 and March

The increase has been projected at 8.7 per cent, which would mean that the minimum monthly benefit would go up to $102 from the present $93.80.

Maximum Social Security payments would rise to $343.90 for retirees, compared to the present $316.30.

Under Ford's proposal, benefits would be held to a new minimum of $98.50 and a new maximum of $332.20.

Robert M. Ball, former Social Security commissioner for 11 years, said Ford's proposal "flabbergasted" him.

Supreme Court rule has given parties strength

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic and Republican leaders say a landmark ruling by the Supreme Court has strengthened the two political parties and added to their responsibilities.

The court ruled unanimously Wednesday that national party conventions play such a crucial role in the political process that the parties can refuse to seat delegates chosen in state elections.

Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss said the decision "places even greater responsibility on the political parties of this nation.

"I as chairman would expect that the national Democratic party would devote itself to ... a guarantee that the voters of any state will never in the future be disenfranchised without due cause." Strauss said.

Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith said the decision appeared to be very significant.

"Such a ruling will clarify who has authority over the delegate selection process and would certainly appear to strengthen the function of a political party," Mrs. Smith said.

The court's ruling wiped out contempt of court proceedings against 59 Illinois delegates whose seating helped swing the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

The delegates, chosen in private caucuses, were seated in place of a slate backed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, which had been elected in the state primary election.

The convention's credentials committee held that the Daley slate violated party guidelines regarding representation of youth, women and minorities.

Speaking for the court, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said the importance of national nominating conventions overrides the need of the states to safeguard their elections.

"This is a decisive year because next year is an election year in America. If nothing is accomplished very soon, we will go to Geneva, all of us Arabs, including the Palestinians, and explode everything

Sadat said if the Geneva conference becomes the forum for Arab-Israeli negotiations, "it will have to be final and conclusive, not merely to discuss a few kilometers under disengagement agreements."

Kissinger contends that the propaganda warfare and publicity accompanying any such confrontation would freeze the positions of both the Arabs and the Israelis and prevent the compromises necessary to reach an agreement.

He also argues that a lasting peace settlement can only be achieved after a series of limited agreements that foster the gradual development of relations between the Arabs and Israelis and eventual acceptance by each side of the other's rights.

Meanwhile, Israeli forces continued their nightly raids on villages in southeast Lebanon which Israel claims are used as bases by the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Israeli military command said the raiding force early today clashed with a force of Arab guerrillas near the village of Shuba (Kfar Chouba), and four Arabs were killed and two Israelis were wounded.

The Israeli troops also blew up a bridge near the village of El Habarieh "to hamper terrorist movement in the region" and brought back one "terrorist suspect" to Israel for interrogation, the command said.

It was the fourth Israeli raid into southeast Lebanon in five nights.

The Israeli command said shortly after its force crossed into Lebanon, Arab gunners shelled Metulla, Israel's northernmost settlement in the panhandle between Lebanon and Syria. The command said there were no casualties or damage, and Israeli forces replied with a barrage of tank fire. But it denied that Israeli armored forces had crossed the border and were waging offensive action in the region.

The first agreement usually sets the level of settlement and other oil companies agreed to about the same terms. Gulf set the pattern this year with a package that include a 26.8 per cent wage increase over two years.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Taxpayers at low-and middle-income levels would get a better tax break from President Ford's proposed tax reductions than high-income taxpayers.

Ford has urged lower tax rates, beginning with taxes being withheld this year, in order to offset a new round of proposed energy price increases. The lower rates are in addition to the one-shot 12 per cent tax cut proposed for taxes on 1974 income Families of four with incomes somewhere between $12,500 and $15,000 would break even under Ford's plans, getting a tax cut about equal to the increase in their energy costs, according to government estimates.

Energy costs for a family of four are expected to increase about $250 due to higher energy taxes, according to Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb. The $250 also represents the approximate tax savings to the typical family of four with an income of between $12,500 and $15,000.

The income grop that would benefit the most from the tax reductions is in the $10,000 category, where a family of four would enjoy tax savings of $349, or $99 more than the average new energy costs. The tax for this family would decline from $867 at present to $518.

At the $12,500 income level, the tax savings would be $300, and at $40,000, it would be $130, meaning taxpayers in the higher bracket would receive $120 less than the average increase in energy prices.

Everybody at the low end of the income scale would at least get $80. Zarb said this would more than cover higher energy costs at low income levels, which he estimated at $44 a family

The blaze started at a Montgomery. Ward catalog store, where it was discovered about 6:30 p.m.

Chief O. S. Kennedy of the Monett Fire Department said the fire had just about been brought under control when flames broke through the store's roof, spreading to Lane's jewelry store and Bob's Shoe Warehouse. These three businesses were destroyed.

Damaged was another shoe store, the First Finance Co., and a clothing store.

Another alarm was reported at 10:15 p.m. at an apartment building north of the business district. However, it was quickly extinguished after causing minor damage in a kitchen.

The cause of the business district blaze was under investigation. No monetary loss had been estimated.

Firemen here were assisted by units from Aurora, Pierce City and Neosho.

New sex book to depart from textbook style

ST. LOUIS (AP)-Masters and Johnson say their new book about sex for the layman may be their only departure from a textbook-like theme.

"The Pleasure Bond," said Dr. William H. Masters, "is the only one planned for the layman at the moment." He and his wife, Virginia Johnson, are considered authorities on sexual response.

The book, which will go on sale Monday, is the couple's third. They collaborated on "Human Sexual Response" in 1966 and "Human Sexual Adequacy" in 1970.

The first two books were textbooks," Masters said in a news conference Wednesday. 'Our next book will be a text-

Although "The Pleasure Bond" is about sex, it is no titillating technical guide.

"We will never write a howto book," Masters said. "That makes performance the be-all and end-all. We think sexual performance is secondary to the pleasure bond.

Sewing for kids

By ERMA BOMBECK

Be honest, ladies. You know and I know that God never meant for women to sew for children.

Sure, the patterns are adorable and easy to follow, the fabrics are enough to blow your imagination, and sewing machines nowadays do everything but answer the door.

But take a look at the 'wearee' of children's fashions.

Do you know I once spent two weeks trying to find a two-year-old's waistline? It's like trying to dress an avocado. Sometimes when I dressed her for bed, I'd swear I saw it and then when I'd put a dress on her and start punching it would disappear. One day I put a dress on her and asked, "If you could have a waist, where would you wear it?"

"Right here!" she said pointing to her navel. From there on in, her waistline hung around her navel, making her look like a sissy gunslinger.

Creating a waistline was a breeze compared to dealing with rubber ankles. I first noticed the ankles when I bought a pair of boots for her. They would remain firm until I got the boot over the toe. Then they would go as limp as cooked spaghetti. I never tried to fit a pair of slacks over her feet that I didn't question God's purpose for not putting a bone in a child's ankle. I don't know why the knees never matched. She always seemed to come out even when she was kneeling or sitting on a chair, but when she was upright and standing still, her hem was always about two inches higher on one side.

The bony shoulders, the nobust bust, the way they grow out of a dress while you are at that very moment putting $8 worth of applique on it ... all that is tolerable.

But probably the most conclusive argument I have against sewing for children is their endurance quotient.

I'm not sure if it is in the Guinness Book of Records, but the longest a child ever stood still for a fitting was 12 seconds. It is held by a woman in Passaic, New Jersey ... and the child was inadvertently basted to her mother's blouse.

The last outfit I made for my daughter was a Sunday deal. We were going to church when I noted one sleeve stopped at the wristbone, the other covered the entire hand. The top had enough room for a friend or puberty, whichever came first. And the matching bonnet was off-center with saliva-saturated ribbons that hung tiredly.

"Couldn't she wear that under a coat?" asked my husband.

"It is the coat," I sighed.

Nixon thought tapes were safe

NEW YORK (AP) — Former White House counsel John W. Dean III says a cellmate told him former President Richard M. Nixon was confident after conversations with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger that he would not have to surrender the Watergate tapes.

"I am told he had some conversations with the Chief Justice - Chief Justice Burger - shortly after this suit was filed, or somewhere along the line, that gave him confidence that he indeed was going to win the lawsuit," Dean said in an interview with the "NBC Nightly News."

Dean, released from Allenwood, Pa., federal prison last week, said he was told of the alleged conversations between Nixon and the Chief Justice by Charles W. Colson when they shared a cell. Colson, a former White House aide, is still in Newsmen for the National Broadcasting Co. reported that spokesmen for Nixon and Burger denied the former President and Burger had discussed the outcome of the suit filed by Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. The Burger spokesman said, "At no time in the whole year of 1974, at no time in the whole year of 1973 did he talk to President Nixon. Chief Justice Burger said that he had never talked to President Nixon at any time about Watergate."

The Supreme Court ruled against Nixon and the subsequent release of the tapes forced his resignation Aug. 9.

NBC Correspondent Carl Stern said he understood Colson knew much about Central Intelligence Agency activity and asked Dean if Colson had told him "anything about his friend Howard Hunt that you didn't know

Dean responded that Colson told him convicted Watergate conspirator Hunt and Richard Helms, former director of the CIA, were "far closer ... than Mr. Helms has been willing to

"Also, that when Hunt left the CIA, he was in need of funds and short of cash and times were tough. And that Mr. Helms gave him $20,000 in cash. I don't know whether it was Helms' personal money or whether it was CIA money or what."

Dean said he did not know why Helms gave Hunt the money and said he did not believe Colson knew either.

Dean stated that Colson said he knew of CIA burglary and bugging of the Chilean Embassy during the administration of President Salvador Allende Gossens.

"He read the CIA file on Watergate and amongst the files he read that the CIA also thought I had knowledge about the Chilean Embassy break-in - which I didn't - but worried about my knowledge and potential testimony.

"The CIA had arrangements made to have the FBI go in and remove the devices within the Chilean Embassy before I testified."

Life under the gun in the nuclear age

In case you hadn't thought about it lately, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger has reminded us that things wouldn't be too healthy in West Central Missouri in the event of a surprise nuclear attack by the Soviet Union.

specifically about this area, but about the possibility of Russia launching a strike against this nation's strategic forces in general. This would include the nine intercontinental missile bases in this country, of which Whiteman Air Force Base is one.

The defense secretary's remarks were reported in a "sanitized" version of his testimony Sept. 11 before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's arms control panel. They constitute one of the most detailed appraisals yet of anticipated U. S. casualties in the event of a Soviet attack.

Schlesinger said that while the chances of any Russian attack are considered fairly slim at this time, the most likely targets would be our strategic military forces as part of a "selective strike," rather than one aimed at the nation's civilian population centers. The reasoning here is that by knocking out our capacity to retaliate, Russia could spare itself some 100 million casualties.

would cause about one million deaths, stated Schlesinger. The total could reach 6 million if Russia also hit SAC bomber bases and naval ballistic missile submarine facilities, he added.

(Coincidental to the release of the defense secretary's testimony, Schlesinger wasn't talking the Pentagon also announced Tuesday that Russia has begun deploying its huge new SS18 missile, capable of carrying up to eight separately-targeted warheads.)

> Whiteman's missiles are placed in 150 silos scattered over 16,000 square miles of West Central Missouri. A sizable number of enemy warheads would be required to neutralize this force. the effect of which on the surrounding civilian population is best left to the imagination.

> Missouri, in fact, was singled out by the Defense Department as "the most vulnerable" of all areas in the U.S. that might be hit by a limited Soviet strike. Casualties would be high in the greater Kansas City zone as well as this area, and even St. Louis and its suburbs would be extremely vulnerable to windborne fallout due to the prevailing westerly winds.

The point of all this is not to strike fear in the hearts of our readers, but to remind them what kind of world it still is. It can be A surprise enemy attack on both sobering and beneficial to intercontinental missile sites alone occasionally think about the unthinkable.

Klassen resignation prompted by probe

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON - Postmaster General Ted Klassen announced his resignation last week just as the FBI was closing in on him.

The FBI confirmed our charge, according to sources close to the investigation, that Klassen accepted a $22,917 fee from the Martin E. Segal Co. after helping the firm get postal business.

This allegedly violates two conflict of interest statutes. The FBI, therefore, will present its findings to the Justice Department for prosecution.

For nearly a year, the craggy Klassen has held out in his postal penthouse, denying reports of wrongdoing and deploring his critics. His abrupt departure from the Postal Service, he said, had nothing to do with the criticism of his conduct.

On the contrary, postal sources say the sworn evidence finally caught up with him. The Board of Governors stuck by him, they say, as long as the charges were confined to our column. But when a congressional committee confirmed our charges, the board could no longer ignore them. Klassen resigned two days after meeting with the board.

Here are the facts that brought him

 ✓ We revealed that Klassen, not once but twice, had helped the Martin E. Segal Co. with postal contracts. When our associate Jack Cloherty questioned him, Klassen denied any knowledge of the second contract. Now sworn congressional testimony contradicts this. The FBI investigation has also confirmed our story completely.

 ✓ We reported that Charles Burnaford, a close friend of Klassen's had picked up no part in the alleged violation of law. $821,000 in postal contracts without submitting a bid. The blustery postmaster general feigned amazement over this. He said he was "appalled." But sworn testimony now reveals that he gave Burnaford's business card to a postal subordinate and suggested that Burnaford could "do a good job."

 ✓ We charged Klassen with padding the payroll with his friends, wasting money on fancy offices and abusing the contracting system. Klassen pooh-poohed the allegations. But a House subcommittee, headed by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif. found that "circumvention of regulations, favoritism, inefficiency and waste have existed in recent years in (postal) contracting and procurement."

 ✓ We described how Klassen had lavished the taxpayers' money on his office complex. The General Accounting Office confirmed our report down to the exact figure he laid out.

Under the contract the enterprising Klassen wangled from the board, he can continue to collect $30,000 from the Postal Service for another two years simply for "making himself available" as a consultant. Then he will be able to retire on a $12,000 annual government pension, although he worked only five years for the government.

Footnote: Astonishingly, the Board of Governors appointed Ben Bailar, Klassen's deputy, as the new postmaster general. Bailar worked with Klassen both at the American Can Co. and later in the Postal Service. We have published evidence that Bailar was implicated in some of Klassen's questionable dealings, although Bailar had BARGAINS FOR CONGRESSMEN: Members of Congress are constantly discovering new ways to skin the taxpayers. The latest: Last year, they slipped through a bill which permits defeated congressmen to purchase their office furnishings for bargain-basement prices.

Former Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., hauled off a load of chairs and typewriters, for example, that had cost the government $2,366.39. Yet he paid only $1,016.89.

Ex-Rep. Ben Blackburn, R-Ga., bought for $251.95 four electric typewriters, a bookcase and a metal office table that originally cost the government $635. He intends to use the furniture, he told us, to open a law office.

For a paltry $40.19, outgoing Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., was able to buy a davenport that had cost the government $220.91. In all, she paid $370.21 for furniture that had an original price tag of $539.88.

Three ex-senators - Norris Cotton, R-N.H., William Fulbright, D-Ark., and Edward Gurney, R-Fla. - have inquired about getting some of the bargain furniture. But at this writing, they had made no purchase. Inquiries also have been received from 53 departing

The General Services Administration determined the prices of the furniture by deducting a flat 8 per cent annual depreciation. If the furniture was "slightly worn or soiled," an additional deduction was granted.

The latest nostalgia kick—Vietnam

WASHINGTON - Henry Simpkin, who has a business called Nostalgia Inc., called the other day and said, "We're bringing back the Vietnamese war."

"So early?" I said.

"I don't know, Simpkin. Are you sure the American people want to be reminded of Vietnam so soon after we got out?"

"Listen, the President isn't asking for our boys to go back in again. All he wants is for Congress to allot hundreds of millions of dollars to help prevent the Viet Cong from taking over the freedom-loving government of President Thieu."

"Do my ears deceive me?" I said. "I think President Ford is playing our song. It seems like only yesterday we were dancing to the same tune at President Johnson's Inaugural Ball."

"Of course, we'll have to send in advisers to help the South Vietnamese. But don't worry, the President has no intention of committing any American boys to fight a war 6,000 miles away from home."

"Simpkin," I said, "I think you've got a hit. It's almost like being there again."

The New Hampshire question

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON - The United States Senate has been described, by some of its more extravagant admirers, as the greatest deliberative body on earth. In the matter of the New Hampshire election contest, the Senate will want to make a special effort to justify that high reputation.

of partisan politics. It involves principles of federalism as old as the Republic. The issue cannot be resolved, one way or another, without creating a precedent that will serve as a guide for the future. For all these reasons, the Senate has a high obligation to take its time, and to settle the matter with every appearance of absolute

The contest involves

The election of Nov. 5, 1974, saw three candidates in the New Hampshire race -Republican Louis C. Wyman, former congressman and state attorney general; Democrat John A. Durkin, former insurance commissioner; and Carmen C. Chimento, a 44-year-old NASA engineer who ran under the American party banner. In the first official tally, Wyman appeared to have won by 355 votes over Durkin. In a second tally, prematurely certified by the secretary of state, Durkin appeared to have won by 10 votes over Wyman. In a third tally, certified by the bipartisan State Ballot Law Commission, the figures were declared final:

> 110,926 Wyman 110,924 Durkin 1,513

To judge from the evidence submitted to the Ballot Law Commission, the election was not exactly a model of perfection. Twelve new voting machines in Manchester may have malfunctioned; absentee ballots in Nashua may have been incorrectly counted; the secretary of state may have wrongly excluded certain writein ballots in Exeter. Other questions were raised about the count in Claremont, Concord, Hanover, Newmarket, Pelham and Salem. The tally was probably no better and no worse than the tally in other elections across the nation, the outcome is believed to be the classifier history. No fraud has been alleged by either Wyman or Durkin

What to do? The Democrats control almost two-thirds of the Senate. If they order a recount by a Democratic body and promptly award the seat to Democrat Durkin, a cry of foul will be heard. Because of the lopsided imbalance in the Senate, the Democrats could gain five seats on Senate committees by denying the victory to Wyman. But if Durkin did in fact win a majority of the valid ballots, Durkin of course deserves the seat.

In the absence of fraud, the Senate will want to think carefully about the wisdom of substituting its judgment on dispute ballots for the judgment of the New Hampshire Ballot Law Commission. As the formal action of a state, the commission's certification is entitled to unusual respect.

This is because senators, under our Constitution, are peculiarly emissaries of their states. Until the Seventeenth Amendment in 1913, many senators were named by their state legislatures. The Constitution, by a subtle choice of prepositions, says that a representative must be an inhabitant of the state "in which" he is chosen; a senator must be an inhabitant of the state "for which" he is chosen. A decent respect for federalism demands that New Hampshire's official decision be given great weight.

Finally, it may be observed that the Senate, like any other parliamentary body, lives on precedents. Any one of several courses could be taken. The Senate could direct its Rules Committee to recount some of the New Hampshire ballots, or to recount all the New Hampshire ballots. The committee might wisely delegate the actual recounting to an independent nonpartisan body. The Senate might well seat Wyman provisionally — after all, he holds the only valid certificate - without prejudice to Durkin's petition. Or the Senate might require that both contenders stand aside for some indefinite period.

The important thing, for the state, for the Senate and for the Democrats, is to settle the matter with deliberate speed but speed ought to be accorded second place, and deliberation first.

Today's Jews follow rituals dating back to Middle Ages

By JONATHAN BRODER

JERUSALEM (AP) - It's five o'clock in the afternoon but the clock says midnight. Bearded men pray in the streets. Television and movies are forbidden. There are no trees, no flowers. This is the Mea Shearim uarter of Jerusalem, a religious ghetto of Jews so orthodox they refuse to recognize the Israeli state — and often the 20th century - following instead a severe life of prayers and rituals dating back to the Middle Ages.

The ban on gardens comes from an ancient Jewish edict that tried to prevent falcons from dropping snakes into holy areas and contaminating religious sacrifices, explains Rabbi Moshe Hirsch, an American-born resident of Mea Shearim since 1955. The sacrifices stopped centuries ago, but the orthodox still keep the laws.

Mea Shearim, which means "100 Gates" in Hebrew, was built 100 years ago by the Ottoman Turks. Around the quarter they constructed a wall with six gates, which the orthodox believe to symbolize the points of the Star of David.

Inside the walls there is a clutter of stone houses, narrow, winding streets, granite archways and outdoor markets.

The orthodox shun modernday trappings from radios to photographs to mod clothes. Bearded men, wearing the black-coated uniforms of the pious Hassidic sect, study Jewish teachings from dawn to dusk in musty synagogues, marking time by a clock that starts a new day the minute the sun goes down.

"We would study and pray for 25 hours a day if it were possible," Rabbi Hirsch says. "And we have devoted our lives to study simply because the Bible tells us to learn."

Some orthodox spend so much on the Torah, the Talmud and ancient religious teachings that there is no time left for gainful employment, and they must live off charity and eat at free kitchens set up by religious foundations.

As for Women's Lib in Mea Shearim, the mere mention of equal rights for the sexes is an anathema. The men begin morning prayers with a chant thanking God they weren't born as women, while religious girls attend segregated schools that prepare them for a life of cooking, sewing and keeping the home according to Jewish Rabbi Hirsch says orthodox boys and girls don't date, and most marriages are arranged by professional matchmakers. Then, according to religious law, the wife tries to make herself as unattractive as possible to discourage the stares of other men. She shaves her head, uses no makeup and dresses in plain floor-length skirts and long sleeves.

The orthodox object to autopsies as a desecration of the human body, which is considered holy. The protests against the draft stem from a recent military drive to bolster manpower after the October Mideast War. Unlike in the past, religious students and orthodox girls are no longer automatically exempt from military service.

Prison is man's only home

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) - Bobby Ferguson has spent all but 20 months of his 40 years in institutions. And he says he didn't care for the little bit of freedom he did have.

Now he's about to be freed again from the Iowa State Penitentiary here. Warden Lou Brewer has his misgivings, but Ferguson says he's a changed man and intends to prove it at the home of an Iowa farm couple Ferguson's mother was an inmate in the Iowa Women's Reformatory when he was born, and he says he's searched in vain for his parents.

After birth, he was taken to Woodward State Hospital where he spent the next 14 years as a ward of the court.

From then on, Ferguson says, he committed a succession of crimes to keep him in institutions where he feels secure and has friends

A year ago he was finishing a 10-year stretch for armed robbery and escape when he asked Gov. Robert Ray to give him a life sentence so he could remain "in the only home I've known. But Ray arranged for Ferguson to become a prison janitor when he was paroled last Feb. 18. Ray said the continuing association with the prison might ease some of the social pressures for Ferguson But Ferguson broke parole after three weeks, wandered clandestinely around Iowa for a couple of months and was returned to prison.

"For me, it is all over," Feruson told The Associated Press in a letter after he was jailed again. "I tried to work, but other people wouldn't let me. Now I want to do life or "I wish hanging were in effect, because I would ask to be hung.'

Today Ferguson says he sees it differently and says he'll find new hope on the 260-acre farm of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Meyer near Ottumwa.

'They've adopted me," Ferguson says. "Not a legal adoption, but I hope to make it that

But Mrs. Meyer says: "We haven't talked with him, just corresponded. We want to get in touch and talk, but I don't suppose that will change our plans because we've already promised he could come here.' Ferguson is due to be released Feb. 7. Ferguson says former prisoners "can get a job, then go to their empty apartment. But that doesn't do it. You've got to have people who care. I've got to make this work. I can't sit back and hope.' Mrs. Meyer, who says she and her husband "are near the age of Bobby's own parents," have a married daughter who lives in Illinois.

"I feel Bobby has responded to this parental thing, where he didn't respond to others," Mrs. Meyer says.

Killebrew all set to join the Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Aging slugger Harmon Killebrew has bid farewell to the Minnesota Twins and hopes to gain a new lease on his baseball life with the Kansas City Royals.

Joe Burke, general manager of the Royals, announced Wednesday the club has reached an agreement with the famed 38-year-old home run specialist and that Killebrew "can sign a contract with us as soon as he is released by the Twins."

Killebrew came to terms with the Royals after daylong reports he was headed for the Texas Rangers. Burke did not disclose terms of the one-year agreement but the Rangers said they would not meet Killebrew's reported request for Royals Stadium may have been a factor in Killebrew's desire to join Kansas City rather than Texas.

"Texas might have the toughest park to hit in in both leagues," Killebrew said from his home in Ontario, Ore. "I certainly hope I can play a couple more years. Kansas City is giving me that opportunity.

"I like the ball park, and I like the club's chances of being a pennant winner.'

Killebrew will be used by the Royals as a designated hitter and pinch hitter. He had 74 hits in 333 times at bat, 13 home runs and drove in 54 runs for the Twins in 1974.

Killebrew's move to the Royals closes out a 14-year reign in Minnesota with whom he became one of baseball's most feared hitters.

He has 559 career home runs, many of them of record distance, and is fifth on the alltime list.

Burke was elated and Twins owner Calvin Griffith and thousands of Minnesota fans saddened by Wednesday's

"We are delighted to have Killebrew," said Burke. "We believe he can help us tremendously and will add much needed right-handed hitting power to our lineup.

"Harmon gives us home run and RBI potential to go with Hal McRae, Amos Otis and John Mayberry. If we have three guys like Otis, McRae and Killebrew, it will be pretty tough to pitch around Mayberry.

"Based on what he did last season with the Twins, I feel Harmon can hit 20 home runs and drive in 65.

"He's been with the Twins for the past 14 years," said Griffith, who signed Killebrew in 1954 fresh out of high school at Payette, Idaho. "We're tremendously indebted to him for all he's meant to our organization and our area."

Killebrew, most prolific righthanded home run hitter in American League history and an AL all-star 13 times, said he was offered three options by Griffith.

"I had a chance to manage Tacoma in the Pacific Coast League," the slugger explained, "stay with Minnesota as a pinch hitter and batting coach or be released."

Quiet time for Big Eight teams

Oklahoma absorbed a 105-85 defeat in an exhibition Monday night at Norman against Athletes in Action, and Kansas State needed an overtime and two Mike Evans free throws with nine seconds left for a 73-71 victory Wednesday night over Arkansas at Manhattan.

The quiet is temporary. The conference race opens full tilt Saturday, beginning with the Wildcats and Nebraska in a regionally televised afternoon game at Lincoln. Three games will follow Saturday night with Oklahoma State at Iowa State, Colorado at Oklahoma, and Missouri at Kansas.

Roadrunners go for first win at Moberly some fine defense applied by

The State Fair Community College Roadrunners swing back into action tonight at Moberly, Mo., a place they've come back from empty-handed in all previous outings.
"We've never won there,"

Bill Barton recalled following Friday night's loss to Johnson County, Kan.. Community College.
"It's a hard place for visiting there's a lot of tradition, packed home crowds and that band can sure fire 'em up," he added

State Fair has been successful against Moberly in Sedalia. Earlier this season, the Roadrunners notched a 65-54 win over the Greyhounds, a team that has won four national junior college championships.

The game is the last stop on a brief, two-game road trip. Saturday night, State Fair resumes Greater Kansas City Community College Conference action at the Fairgrounds against Penn Valley of Kansas

Penn Valley and State Fair are currently in a four-way tie for second place in conference standings.

Barton said there probably wouldn't be any lineup changes for Thursday game in Moberly. The Roadrunners' starting five would consist of guards Jerry

Bybee and Shelvy Brown, center Stan McNeill, along with forwards Charles Johnson and Lyonell Hardin. The Roadrunners will probably open in a man-to-man defense against Moberly, which is now 9-6 after Tuesday night's setback to Burlington, Iowa. That loss snapped a three-game winning streak the Greyhounds had established since last losing to State Fair, Dec. 12. Since that loss, Moberly has defeated Longview (Lee's Summit), Centerville, Iowa, and Meramec of St. Louis County.

One of the big keys in the Roadrunners' victory over Moberly earlier this season was counterparts Brad Remole and Maurice Snipe. Snipe and Remole combined for only one point in the Dec. 12 contest The balance of the starting Greyhounds lineup will come from front-liners Ricky Carter, Raynard Sills or Tony Runge.

Joe Nix or Michael Dilligard, who tipped in Moberly's winning bucket Saturday night against Meramec with nine seconds to go, are the prime candidates to start in the post. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m.

Chiefs continue search

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs may be leaning toward a National Football League assistant or a college coach in their search for a successor to head Coach Hank Stram.

General Manager Jack Steadman said Wednesday an assistant would be familiar with pro techniques in forming a staff and evaluating Chiefs personnel and that a college coach has proven ability as a leader and motivator.

Steadman said eight applicants have been interviewed and 10 more interviews are scheduled. He expects to interview at least 20 applicants before a selection is made. Of these, nine are college coaches.

Steadman said he had "talked with almost every ex-NFL head coach expressing interest but we have not included them in our interview schedule at this time.

"We would like to hire a coach between the ages of 38 and 45 who is seasoned and has a winning record or has been operating under a winning system and has had exposure of winning coaches."

Stram was fired by the Chiefs Dec. 27 after 15 years in the post. His 1974 team had a 5-9 record.

current season, losing only to second ranked UCLA 81-75. The Terps have twice beaten Wake Forest, which handed State its only loss in 11 starts, 83-78, ending a 36-game winning streak.

Thompson missed 15 of 20 shots against Wake Forest's zone, but Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell plans to use his usual man-to-man defense with muscular sophomore Steve Sheppard assigned to guard Thompson.

"John Lucas wanted to guard Thompson," Driesell said of Maryland's star guard. "But he's cocky and wants to guard everybody. He even wanted to guard Bill Walton last year."

Actually, Lucas, Owen Brown and Mo Howard are all considered possible shadows for Thompson, the super jumper who is averaging 32.6 points a game. Lucas tops the Terps with a 19.6 average.

Trip worth it for parents

By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer

Not all roads lead from Merritt, British Columbia to West Madison Street in Chicago. It's a long trip just to see a hockey game.

Grant Mulvey knows it, so he was happy to make the trip worthwhile for his parents by scoring the winning goal for the Black Hawks in a 2-1 National Hockey League victory over the arch-rival Vancouver Canucks Wednesday night.

For an 18-year-old, Mulvey showed a lot of poise when the puck skittered to him midway through the second period. Chicago center Ivan Boldirev broke in on Canucks' goalie Gary Smith and passed to Mulvey on his right. Smith came out to meet the youngster but Mulvey found an opening for QUEBEC (AP) - Premier Robert Bourassa's plan to save the 1976 Summer Olympics will be announced today when the government makes public an imposed wage settlement to end an illegal strike of 1,200 iron workers.

The strike, which began last Nov. 27. forced a complete shutdown of construction last week at the east-end Montreal site for the Games, provoking dire predictions they may never be held there

Premier Bourassa refused to tell reporters Wednesday night what the cabinet's decision will be, as did Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer.

It was Cournoyer who convened both sides in the eightweek labor dispute before a two-day national assembly committee to explain why they could not reach agreement on indexing workers' salaries to the cost-of-living.

The iron workers walked off the job to demand a 50cent hourly wage increase but are now asking for a $1 hourly increase. They install steel reinforcing rods without which no concrete can be poured.

Their demands have darkened prospects for the Olympics, already under public scrutiny after it was revealed cost estimates had soared to $653 million from the original $310 million.

The brunt of the increase centered on construction of the main stadium, with the latest estimates for the 70,000-seat facility listed at $380 million.

The work stoppage led to speculation that facilities for the Olympics - already 25 days behind schedule at the time of the strike - would not be completed in time for the July 17, 1976, start of the ST. LOUIS (AP) - An Illinois man serving a 12-year prison sentence has been indicted by a federal grand jury in the kidnaping of a St. Louis man whose body was discovered in a shallow grave in Illinois last November.

ville, Ill., was charged Wednesday in the indictment with the kidnaping of Robert C. Homeyer, 25, who Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said was apparently forced to dig his own grave before he was shot once in the back of the head.

Homeyer was abducted Nov. 14, 1973, from his St. Louis apartment, taken to a deserted wooded area near Cahokia, Ill., and shot, FBI agents said.

The indictment against Giblin was returned by the grand jury last week but was suppressed until a figure in the case could be taken into protective custody, according to the U.S. attorney's office.

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The president of striking Sheet Metal Workers Local 36 says he is optimistic that a settlement can be reached by next Monday to end the six-month-old strike.

Mel Zimmerman reported that new proposals were developed during an all-day session Wednesday and said these will be submitted to the local membership in a secret ballot this weekend. If the sheet metal workers approve the proposals, they could return to their jobs Monday, he added.

Zimmerman said wages were no longer an issue in the dispute. It was previously announced that both sides were in apparent agreement on a a $2.67 an hour increase over three years. Zimmerman said his union would vote on whether to accept a supplemental pay agreement proposed by St. Louis-area contractors or one proposed by the union. Both would provide supplemental pay to members out of work.

The long strike, which affects 1,200 workers, has delayed many major construction projects in St. Louis.

Silicone injections can be harmful

Dear Dr. Lamb - I would appreciate your explaining to me how a silicone injection is done for breast enlargement and if it is dangerous as some people say. Would it cause problems in later years? What kind of doctor would I go to for this kind of procedure?

Dear Reader - Silicone injections are not recommended for breast enlargement. There have been a number of complications reported from the procedure. Some black market efforts have also been made with impure silicone which makes this even more dangerous.

I am sympathetic with a although I think too many women place too much So, don't confuse the oral emphasis on this aspect of their figure when they could do better in life to spend more time developing their personality. Those who really need or feel they must have an operation for breast enlargement should see a plastic surgeon who can implant silicone, not inject it. The implants are of several different varieties, but the end result is a surgically-placed prosthesis behind the normal breast tissue.

Dear Dr. Lamb - Is it possible to alternate insulin and Orinase? I've been on both and have both on hand. I'm on

Dear Reader - While many doctors prescribe oral pills for diabetes, I must tell you that the American Medical Assn., The Diabetic Assn. and the Food and Drug Administration have all advised against their

Most diabetics who can have their blood sugar controlled by the oral medicines can do as well, or according to statistics even better, when managed by

The rub is many patients will not follow the doctor's advice about their diet and will not lose excess fat. Finally the doctor gives up and prescribes the pill thinking that it will be better than nothing - but even that is debatable.

There is another psychological factor involved. Doctors are human, believe it or not, and they want to do something about the patient's problems. It is difficult for them to do nothing. So they prescribe sometimes when they might just as well have done nothing. The patient is usually happier because he wants the doctor to do something.

I do not think patients should change their insulin and pills around without their doctor's approval. I would never recommend mixing the oral tablets and insulin on your own.

The two medicines are not the same. I have had readers write and tell me I was wrong about stating that one can't take insulin by mouth. But those oral preparations are not insulin and quite apparently do not do all the things insulin does. Perhaps more important they may also do some things that insulin woman's desire to be attractive, doesn't do that may not be good for the body in all cases. medicines used to lower blood sugar with the real thing insulin.

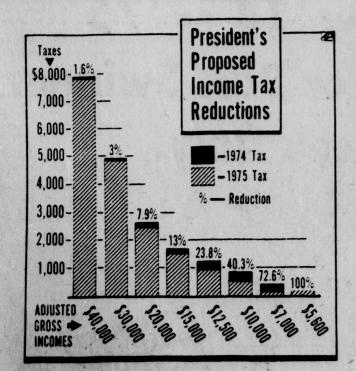

In general, for mild or moderate diabetics I am all for doing everything you can with diet first, particularly eliminating any excess obestity, if any is present. Then, if it seems indicated, insulin can be used. I want to emphasize, though, that many abnormal diabetic-type sugar tolerance tests become entirely normal after elimination of obesity. Correcting the obesity goes to the heart of the problem in correcting a major factor causing the condition which is preferable to using artificial treatment. (NEA)

Hope featured Many lessons for congress freshmen

By WILLIAM STOCK TON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pity the freshman congressmen, the new kids on the block, as they learn the ropes at the beginning of the 94th Congress.

Statistics show they are dif-ferent from their more experienced colleagues who are old hands at this business of being a U.S. representative.

-They are a bit better educated than the incumbents. -They had to fight somewhat harder to win the opportunity to sit on the crowded House floor today and listen to President Ford's State of the Union address and wrestle for the next two years with the nation's problems.
